Conclusions were based on and statistical interpretations. graphical data BACKGROUND A growing public awareness about the toxicity of lead has brought about the question of the contribution of lead by leaded brass plumbing fixtures and faucets to drinking water. A recent large 7 preliminary lead and copper rule survey of 46 systems and medium and small systems conducted by the Association of Metropolitan Water Agencies stated: By far the major reason suspected leaching from (newer) is or is to be lead new faucets and fixtures. , referring to reported causes of high lead values in drinking water samples. As the public grows more familiar with the issues concerning safe drinking water, pressure on legislators to reduce or even ban the use of lead (and other contaminants) in plumbing products may grow. In California, the Natural Resources Defense Council and the Environmental Law Foundation filed a complaint with the California Superior Court on December 15, 1992. The complaint stated that a number of major faucet manufacturers marketed faucets that leach lead into drinking limit the water at levels exceeding the of 0. 5 t4g L set under the States Proposition 65 Standard. The lawsuit targeted 13 major faucet...
