The following translation was finished on the very day when I heard of the Czar sassassination. In reading the book in the original, it struck me that the characters were drawn from real life; and now I am convinced that Sophie Pieoffsky is the original of Wanda Kryloff. What could be more characteristic of Wanda than Sophie sdyng message to her mother : W aste no time in assuaging the wrath of my father !T he description of her beauty, of her refinement, of her cool, unflinching courage, of her wonderful self-possession, are all Wanda Kryloff to the life. I notice also the following extract from the daily papers : S ophie Pieoffsky, the young lady hanged in St. Petersburg on Friday for her share in the assassination of the Czar, was pretty and refined in appearance, and was exceedingly well educated. She has a near relative, now an aide-de camp to the Grand Duke A lexis. This aide-de-camp I take to be Verenine, called A lexis Verenine, from his relations with the grand-duke of that name.
