Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from A Pathfinder in American History, Vol. 1 of 1: For the Use of Teachers, Normal Schools, and More Mature Pupils in Grammar Grades In placing this little book before the great body of American teachers, the authors hope to meet a long-felt need. During the last ten years an intelligent patriotism has found emphatic expression in public opinion, and this public opinion is making itself felt in our common schools. It demands an American flag in every school-yard; it demands everywhere systematic and thorough training for American manhood and womanhood. Teachers have been quick to respond to this demand and have given their faithful efforts to mapping out and putting into successful operation a plan of work in American history for primary, intermediate, and lower grammar grades. Many difficulties have arisen, not the least of which has been the lack of a reliable guide to the best literature on this subject. Fortunately for the good cause, however, those who have been on the lookout for this literature have found it richly supplied from the pens of many able writers. The Pathfinder tells what this literature is, where it can be found, and what it costs. The references have been made with painstaking care by two practical teachers who have for years been giving careful thought to this subject. While these references are not exhaustive, they include, we believe, the best children's books on this subject.
